

22 Glass

Glass is a key element in modern architecture. It allows natural light to enter buildings, creating a bright and airy atmosphere. Glass can also be used to create a sense of transparency and openness, allowing people to see into the building and vice versa. This can be achieved through the use of large glass panels, glass walls, and glass roofs. Glass can also be used to create a sense of privacy and security, as it can be made opaque or tinted. This can be achieved through the use of glass blocks, glass curtains, and glass doors. Glass is a versatile material that can be used in a variety of ways to create a wide range of architectural effects.

From light to glass to concrete building system

The first step in the process of creating a glass and concrete building system is to determine the building's purpose and the desired level of transparency. Once this has been determined, the next step is to select the appropriate glass and concrete materials. The final step is to design the building's structure and exterior finish.
