Archifacts ,1999 Who Will Feed China? Lester Brown,2023-08-18 Originally published in 1995 but with enduring relevance in a time of global population growth and food insecurity when it was first published this book attracted much global attention and criticism from Beijing It argued that even as water becomes scarcer in a land where 80% of the grain crop is irrigated as per acre yield gains are erased by the loss of agricultural land to industrialization and as food production stagnates China still increases its population by the equivalent of a new Beijing each year This book predicts that in an integrated world economy China s rising food prices will become the world s rising food prices China s land scarcity will come everyone s land scarcity and water scarcity in China will affect the entire world China s dependence on massive imports like the collapse of the world s fisheries will be a wake up call that we are colliding with the earth s capacity to feed us Over time Janet Larsen argued China s leaders came to acknowledge how Who Will Feed China changed their thinking As China s wealth increases so do the dietary demands of its population The increasing middle classes demand more grain intensive meat and farmed fish The issue of who will feed China has not gone away Despine and the Evolution of Psychology J. McKeown, C. The Emergence of Social Security in Canada Dennis

T. Guest, 2013-12-01 The Emergence of Social Security in Canada has become a standard text in social work and related courses in post secondary institutions across Canada. It is the first and most detailed history of Canadian social security from colonial times to the present. This book analyzes the major influences shaping the Canadian welfare state. A central trend in Canadian social security over most of the twentieth century has been a shift from a residual to an institutional concept. The residual approach which dominated until the Second World War posited that the causes of poverty and joblessness were to be found within individuals and were best remedied by personal initiative and reliance on the private market. However the dramatic changes brought about by the Great Depression and the Second World War resulted in the rise of an institutional approach to social security. Poverty and joblessness began to be viewed as the results of systemic failure and the public began to demand that governments take action to establish front rank institutions guaranteeing a level of protection against the common risks to livelihood. Thus the foundations of the Canadian welfare state were established. The Emergence of Social Security in Canada is both an important historical resource and an engrossing tale in its own right and it will be of great interest to anyone concerned about Canadian social policy.

Citizens, Democracy, and Markets Around the Pacific Rim Russell J. Dalton, To-ch'öl Sin, 2006-11-02 East Asia is one of the most dynamic areas of political change in the world today. What role do citizens play in these processes of change? Drawing upon a unique set of coordinated public opinion surveys conducted by the World Values Survey, this book provides a dramatically new image of the political cultures of East Asia. Most East Asian citizens have strong democratic aspirations even in still autocratic nations. Most East Asians support liberal market reforms even in nations where state socialism has been dominant. The book's findings thus provide a new perspective on the political values of Asian publics. We demonstrate that the dramatic socioeconomic changes of the past several decades have transformed public opinion, altering many of the social norms traditionally identified with Asian values and creating public support for further political and economic modernization of the region. Political culture in East Asia is not an impediment to change but creates the potential for even greater democratization and marketization. Comparative Politics is a series for students and teachers of political science that deals with contemporary government and politics. The General Editors are Max Kaase, Professor of Political Science, Vice President and Dean, School of Humanities and Social Science, International University Bremen, Germany, and Kenneth Newton, Professor of Comparative Politics, University of Southampton. The series is produced in association with the European Consortium for Political Research.
