

T18 Four-Speed Manual Transmission

The T18 is a four-speed, countershaft transmission, synchronized in three forward speeds (2nd, 3rd and 4th). The gears are of helical and spur design. Heavy duty strut-type synchronizers are used for easier shifting. This unit is used in gasoline and diesel engine applications such as light trucks, compactors, on-highway tow tractors and other vehicles of similar size and weight.

It is one of many manufactured by Warner Gear, division of Borg-Warner Corporation, in its modern facility at Muncie, Indiana where transmission development and engineering has been a tradition since 1901. Intensive research, directed by an awareness of trends and requirements, has been responsible for marked advances in manufacturing procedures such as numerically-controlled machining centers for established products and for new small run production. Quality control and inspection facilities are an integral function of all manufacturing procedures. For additional information, contact the Marketing Department.
