Modern theories tend to associate misbehavior and intentional actions that harm others with personal characteristics. The psychologists and doctors in a survey predicted that only a small portion of people (about 1-3%) would intentionally harm someone after they've been told to do so.

A good example of this phenomenon is a recent war trial, as the result of which Adolph Eichmann had claimed he was only following the given orders. The author wanted to verify this statement. Is it possible people can cause harm to others only because of their obedience? Can people betray their moral convictions if they were ordered to do so?

During the experiment, we will see whether someone can continue administering painful electric shocks that harm another person simply because he or she is told to do so. It is expected that very few will continue and that most of the participants will not obey the order.

Literature classes      Writing a Research Paper in Political Science Lisa A. Baglione, 2015-03-17 In Writing a Research Paper in Political Science author Lisa Baglione breaks down the research paper into its constituent parts and shows students precisely how to complete each component. The author provides encouragement at each stage and faces pitfalls head on giving advice and examples so that students move through each task successfully. Students are shown how to craft the right research question, find good sources and properly summarize them, operationalize concepts, design good tests for their hypotheses and present and analyze quantitative and qualitative data. Even writing an introduction coming up with effective headings and titles, presenting a conclusion and the important steps of editing and revising are covered. Practical summaries, recipes for success, worksheets, exercises and a series of handy checklists make this a must have supplement for any writing intensive political science course. In this Third Edition, updated sample research topics come from American government, gender studies, comparative politics and international relations. And now more extensive materials are available on the web including checklists and worksheets that help students tackle each step. Calendar ideas to help them complete their paper on time and a glossary.

How to Write and Publish a Scientific Paper Barbara Gastel, Robert A. Day, 2022-06-30 Thoroughly updated throughout, this classic practical text on how to write and publish a scientific paper takes its own advice to be as clear and simple as possible. The purpose of scientific writing according to Barbara Gastel and Robert A. Day is to communicate new scientific findings. Science is simply too important to be communicated in anything other than words of certain meaning. This clear, beautifully written and often funny text is a must have for anyone who needs to communicate scientific information, whether they're writing for a professor, other scientists or the general public. The thoughtfully revised 9th edition retains the most important material including preparing text and graphics, publishing papers and other types of writing and plenty of information on writing style while adding up to date advice on copyright, presenting online, identifying authors, creating visual abstracts and writing in English as a non native language. A set of valuable appendixes provide ready reference including words and expressions to avoid, SI prefixes, a list of helpful websites and a glossary. Students and working scientists will want to keep How to Write and Publish a Scientific Paper at their desks and refer to it at every stage of writing and publication.

How to Write Better Medical Papers Michael Hanna, 2019-03-20 This book guides medical researchers through all stages of transforming their scientific data and ideas into a published paper. Many researchers in medicine, including the life sciences and health sciences, struggle to get their research written and published. Manuscripts are typically rejected and/or sent back for revisions several times before ever being published. One reason for this is that researchers have not received much instruction in the specific subjects and skills needed to write and publish scientific medical papers: research methodology, ethics, statistics, data visualization, writing, revising and the practicalities of publishing. Instead of wasting the reader's time discussing trivialities of punctuation, spelling etc, this book tackles all the major scientific issues that routinely lead to manuscripts getting rejected from the journals. The section Preparing covers the range of methodological ethical and practical aspects that researchers need to address before starting to write their paper The section Analyzing reviews commonplace problems in the statistical analysis and presentation and how to resolve those problems The section Drafting describes what to write in all the various parts of a paper the Introduction Methods Results Discussion Abstract etc The section Revising explains and illustrates how to improve the writing style of any manuscript The section Publishing discusses how to navigate the peer review process and all other practical aspects of the publishing phase This book draws on the author's decade of experience as an independent medical writer and research consultant but it is not written merely as the personal opinion of yet another expert The entire book is grounded in the existing scientific and scholarly literature with extensive references and a lengthy annotated bibliography so readers can quickly obtain more information on any aspect they want Thus this book provides a more evidence based scholarly account of how medical scientific papers should be written in order to improve medical communication and accelerate scientific progress After reading this entire book cover to cover medical researchers will know how to write better quality medical papers and they will be able to publish their work in better journals with less time and struggle This book is essential reading for anyone conducting research in clinical medicine life sciences or health sciences Introduction to Graduate Research and Writing
