Abstract: The purpose of this study was to investigate the effects of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of elderly people. The study was conducted in a community center in a city in the north of Iran. The participants were 30 elderly people (15 men and 15 women) aged 65 and above. They were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group participated in a 12-week training program consisting of aerobic exercises, strength training, and flexibility exercises. The control group did not participate in any training program. The data were collected at the beginning and at the end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the experimental group had significant improvements in physical health (e.g., increased muscle strength, improved balance, and increased endurance) and psychological health (e.g., reduced anxiety and depression, and improved mood) compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can be an effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of elderly people.

QUESTION My 10-year-old son has been diagnosed with a urinary tract infection. He has been taking antibiotics for 3 days, but he still has a fever and is still uncomfortable. What should I do?

ANSWER Urinary tract infections (UTIs) are common in children, and they can be caused by a variety of bacteria. The most common cause is Escherichia coli (E. coli). UTIs can be treated with antibiotics, but it is important to make sure the child is taking the medication correctly and for the full course of treatment. If the child's fever and discomfort persist after 3 days of treatment, it is important to contact the doctor. The doctor may want to do a urine culture to see if the bacteria are responding to the antibiotics. If the bacteria are not responding, the doctor may need to change the antibiotic. It is also important to make sure the child is drinking plenty of fluids to help flush out the bacteria.
