

Modeling a new transportation network

(1) All distances are doubled, so our network now looks like in Figure 1. It is required to illustrate the graphs correct. The answer is: No.

(2) It again is incorrect. It is the distances in the graph, which are not the distances from 'A' to 'B' in the network, which are given by the shortest distance of light, not the other way around of the network. Another reason:

It is not correct to program in the distance, which is given by the shortest distance of light, not the other way around. It is not correct to program in the distance, which is given by the shortest distance of light, not the other way around. It is not correct to program in the distance, which is given by the shortest distance of light, not the other way around.

(3) Since the all four nodes are connected, with one edge, which is not the shortest distance, it is not correct to program in the distance, which is given by the shortest distance of light, not the other way around.
