Matching supply with demand : an introduction to operations management Gérard Cachon, 2013 Loose-Leaf for Matching Supply with Demand Gerard Cachon, Christian Terwiesch, 2018-09-18 Cachon Matching Supply with Demand 4e is a clear concise and more rigorous approach to an introductory Operations management course Written by Wharton authors who use their guiding principles real operations real solutions to bring the text and concepts to life writing the majority of chapters from the perspective of specific companies The real solutions refers to providing students with tools and strategies they can implement in practice and apply the authors models in a realistic operational setting The authors strive for real simple by using as little mathematical notation as possible focusing on many real world examples and consistent terminology and phrasing throughout Matching Supply with Demand in Decentralized Multi-Location Systems Li Jiang, 2006 Matching Supply and Demand to Maximize Profits from Remanufacturing V. Daniel R. Guide, 2001

Matching Supply and Demand , Sales and operations S how the principles of S and more Matching Supply and Demand Using Dynamic Quotation Strategies Ahmet Baykal Hafizoglu, 2012 Today s competitive markets force companies to constantly engage in the complex task of managing their demand In make to order manufacturing or service systems the demand of a product is shaped by price and lead times where high price and lead time quotes ensure profitability for supplier but discourage the customers from placing orders Low price and lead times on the other hand generally result in high demand but do not necessarily ensure profitability The price and lead time quotation problem considers the trade off between offering high and low prices and lead times The recent practices in make to order manufacturing companies reveal the importance of dynamic quotation strategies under which the prices and lead time quotes flexibly change depending on the status of the system In this dissertation the objective is to model a make to order manufacturing system and explore various aspects of dynamic quotation strategies such as the behavior of optimal price and lead time decisions the impact of customer preferences on optimal decisions the benefits of employing dynamic quotation in comparison to simpler quotation strategies and the benefits of coordinating price and lead time decisions I first consider a manufacturer that receives demand from spot purchasers who are quoted dynamic price and lead times as well as from contract customers who have agreements with the manufacturer with fixed price and lead time terms I analyze how customer preferences affect the optimal price and lead time decisions the benefits of dynamic quotation and the optimal mix of spot purchaser and contract customers These analyses necessitate the computation of expected tardiness of customer orders at the moment customer enters the system Hence in the second part of the dissertation I develop methodologies to compute the expected tardiness in multi class priority queues For the trivial single class case a closed formulation is obtained For the more complex multi class case numerical inverse Laplace transformation algorithms are developed In the last part of the dissertation I model a decentralized system with two components Marketing department determines the price quotes with the objective of maximizing revenues and manufacturing department determines the lead time quotes to minimize lateness costs I discuss the benefits of coordinating price and lead time decisions and develop an incentivization scheme to reduce the negative impacts of lack of coordination
