Designing Information Literacy Instruction Joan R. Kaplowitz, 2014-05-01 Designing Information Literacy Instruction The Teaching Tripod Approach provides a working knowledge of how instructional design ID applies to information literacy instruction ILI Its how to do it approach is directed at instruction librarians in all library settings and deals with both face to face and online ID issues No matter where an instruction librarian works whom they are teaching or what delivery mode they will be using the ID process remains the same Start with the user and the user s needs Identify the instructional problem s Develop outcomes that address these problem s Use outcomes to drive both the learning activities included and the assessments used to measure the attainment of the success of the instructional endeavor This book will help instruction librarians create instruction for all types of environments and in all modes of delivery It includes exercises and worksheets to help the reader work through the instructional design process Based on Kaplowitz s innovative Teaching Tripod model it will help instructional librarians clearly define the crucial links between outcomes activities and assessment Resources in Education ,2000-10 Uninvited Neighbors Herbert G. Ruffin, 2014-03-28 In the late 1960s African American protests and Black Power demonstrations in California s Santa Clara County including what s now called Silicon Valley took many observers by surprise After all as far back as the 1890s the California constitution had legally abolished most forms of racial discrimination and subsequent legal reform had surely taken care of the rest White Americans might even have wondered where the black activists in the late sixties were coming from because beginning with the writings of Fredrick Jackson Turner the most influential histories of the American West simply left out African Americans or later portrayed them as a passive and insignificant presence Uninvited Neighbors puts black people back into the picture and dispels cherished myths about California s racial history Reaching from the Spanish era to the valley s emergence as a center of the high tech industry this is the first comprehensive history of the African American experience in the Santa Clara Valley Author Herbert G Ruffin II s study presents the black experience in a new way with a focus on how despite their smaller numbers and obscure presence African Americans in the South Bay forged communities that had a regional and national impact disproportionate to their population As the region industrialized and spawned suburbs during and after World War II its black citizens built institutions such as churches social clubs and civil rights organizations and challenged socioeconomic restrictions Ruffin explores the quest of the area s black people for the postwar American Dream The book also addresses the scattering of the black community during the region s late yet rapid urban growth after 1950 which led to the creation of several distinct black suburban communities clustered in metropolitan San Jose Ruffin treats people of color as agents of their own development and survival in a region that was always multiracial and where slavery and Jim Crow did not predominate but where the white embrace of racial justice and equality was often insincere The result offers a new view of the intersection of African American history and the history of the American West Collection Development Maureen Pastine, 2013-10-18 With the prolific changes in the electronic environment do you sometimes feel overwhelmed by the multiplying of electronic information resources the different methods of access and their combined impact on collection development If so Collection Development is the book to help you get a handle on what's out there In no time at all you'll be able to select and integrate electronic resources into collection development programs at even the most traditional of libraries In the process you will learn alternative approaches for dealing with electronic databases on line access and fiscal planning for the integration of the new information technologies into collection development Collection Development offers useful strategies for dealing with electronic resources in terms of selection and evaluation collection development policies organizational structure and budgeting You also acquire important information on Internet information resources accessible through Gophers and World Wide Web sites access vs ownership issues serving the remote user at an extended campus site the relationship of selection to acquisitions managing a CD Rom collection development process planning issues of cooperation collaboration and change pricing and planning issues and their impact on library budgets negotiating site licenses Librarians in collection development academic librarians and personnel in technology automation development will find Collection Development an indispensable tool for grappling with the demands and pressures of screening and choosing the most suitable information resources from the dynamic even saturated world of technology The book's insights and practical methodologies will help you integrate new on line and electronic information resources into your program with relative ease
