Lab - How do Fossils Show Change?

Most organisms live, die, and decompose. They leave no traces of having lived. Under certain conditions, an organism's remains or tracks may be preserved as a fossil. Fossils give clues about how an organism looked and where it lived. They are often used by scientists as evidence of change.

A fossil is any remains of a once-living thing. Fossils may be only the outline of some plant, animal, or other organism that is preserved in rock. Sometimes, entire skeletons of animals that lived millions of years ago are found.

Paradoxical Life Andreas Wagner, 2009-09-01 What can a fingernail tell us about the mysteries of creation In one sense a nail is merely a hunk of mute matter yet in another it is an information superhighway quite literally at our fingertips Every moment streams of molecular signals direct our cells to move flatten swell shrink divide or die Andreas Wagner's ambitious new book explores this hidden web of unimaginably complex interactions in every living being In the process he unveils a host of paradoxes underpinning our understanding of modern biology contradictions he considers gatekeepers at the frontiers of knowledge Though we tend to think of concepts in such mutually exclusive pairs as mind matter self other and nature nurture Wagner argues that these opposing ideas are not actually separate Indeed they are as inextricably connected as the two sides of a coin Through a tour of modern biological marvels Wagner illustrates how this paradoxical tension has a profound effect on the way we define the world around us Paradoxical Life is thus not only a unique account of modern biology It ultimately serves a radical and optimistic outlook for humans and the world we help create
