Cutright, 2021-01-26 A sweeping overview of how and what humans have eaten in their long history as a species The Story of Food in the Human Past How What We Ate Made Us Who We Are uses case studies from recent archaeological research to tell the story of food in human prehistory Beginning with the earliest members of our genus Robyn E Cutright investigates the role of food in shaping who we are as humans during the emergence of modern Homo sapiens and through major transitions in human prehistory such as the development of agriculture and the emergence of complex societies This fascinating study begins with a discussion of how food shaped humans in evolutionary terms by examining what makes human eating unique the use of fire to cook and the origins of cuisine as culture and adaptation through the example of Neandertals The second part of the book describes how cuisine was reshaped when humans domesticated plants and animals and examines how food expressed ancient social structures and identities such as gender class and ethnicity Cutright shows how food took on special meaning in feasts and religious rituals and also pays attention to the daily preparation and consumption of food as central to human society Cutright synthesizes recent paleoanthropological and archaeological research on ancient diet and cuisine and complements her research on daily diet culinary practice and special purpose mortuary and celebratory meals in the Andes with comparative case studies from around the world to offer readers a holistic view of what humans ate in the past and what that reveals about who we are On Violence in History Philip Dwyer, Mark S. Micale, 2020-01-10 Is global violence on the decline Scholars argue that Harvard psychologist Steven Pinker's proposal that violence has declined dramatically over time is flawed This highly publicized argument that human violence across the world has been dramatically abating continues to influence discourse among academics and the general public alike In this provocative volume a cast of eminent historians interrogate Pinker's thesis by exposing the realities of violence throughout human history In doing so they reveal the history of human violence to be richer more thought provoking and considerably more complicated than Pinker claims From the introduction Not all of the scholars included in this volume agree on everything but the overall verdict is that Pinker's thesis for all the stimulus it may have given to discussions around violence is seriously if not fatally flawed. The problems that come up time and again are the failure to genuinely engage with historical methodologies, the unquestioning use of dubious sources, the tendency to exaggerate the violence of the past in order to contrast it with the supposed peacefulness of the modern era, the creation of a number of straw men which Pinker then goes on to debunk, and its extraordinarily Western-centric, not to say Whiggish, view of the world. Complex historical questions as the essays in this volume clearly demonstrate cannot be answered with any degree of certainty and certainly not in a simplistic way. Our goal here is not to offer a final definitive verdict on Pinker's work; it is rather to initiate an ongoing process of assessment that in the future will incorporate as much of the history profession as possible.

Scenes from Prehistoric Life Francis Pryor, 2021-08-05 An invigorating journey through Britain's prehistoric landscape and an insight into the lives of its inhabitants. Highly compelling. Spectator Books of the Year. An evocative foray into the prehistoric past. BBC Countryfile Magazine. Vividly relating what life was like in pre-Roman Britain. Choice Magazine. Makes life in Britain BC often sound rather more appealing than the frenetic and anxious 21st century. Daily Mail. In Scenes from Prehistoric Life, the distinguished archaeologist Francis Pryor paints a vivid picture of British and Irish prehistory from the Old Stone Age about one million years ago to the arrival of the Romans in AD 43, in a sequence of fifteen profiles of ancient landscapes. Whether writing about the early human family who trod the estuarine muds of Happisburgh in Norfolk c. 900,000 BC, the craftsmen who built a wooden trackway in the Somerset Levels early in the fourth millennium BC, or the Iron Age denizens of Britain's first towns, Pryor uses excavations and surveys to uncover the daily routines of our ancient ancestors. By revealing how our prehistoric forebears coped with both simple practical problems and more existential challenges, Francis Pryor offers remarkable insights into the long and unrecorded centuries of our early history and a convincing, well-attested and movingly human portrait of prehistoric life as it was really lived.

The Birth of the Anthropocene Jeremy Davies, 2016-05-24 The world faces an environmental crisis unprecedented in human history. Carbon dioxide levels have reached heights not seen for three million years, and the greatest mass extinction since the time of the dinosaurs appears to be underway. Such far-reaching changes suggest something remarkable: the beginning of a new geological epoch. It has been called the Anthropocene. The Birth of the Anthropocene shows how this epochal transformation puts the deep history of the planet at the heart of contemporary environmental politics. By opening a window onto geological time, the idea of the Anthropocene changes our understanding of present-day environmental destruction and injustice. Linking new developments in earth science to the insights of world historians, Jeremy Davies shows that as the Anthropocene epoch begins, politics and geology have become inextricably entwined.

Why Did Ancient Civilizations Fail? Scott A. J. Johnson, 2016-09-19 Ideas abound as to why certain complex societies collapsed in the past, including environmental change, subsistence failure, fluctuating social structure, and lack of adaptability. Why Did Ancient Civilizations Fail? evaluates the current theories in this important topic and discusses why they offer only partial explanations of the failure of past civilizations This engaging book offers a new theory of collapse that of social hubris Through an examination of Mesopotamian Egyptian Roman Maya Inca and Aztec societies Johnson persuasively argues that hubris blinded many ancient peoples to evidence that would have allowed them to adapt and he further considers how this has implications for contemporary societies Comprehensive and well written this volume serves as an ideal text for undergraduate courses on ancient complex societies as well as appealing to the scholar interested in societal collapse

Evolution, Morality and the Fabric of Society R. Paul Thompson, 2022-05-19 Recent interest in the evolution of the social contract is extended by providing a thoroughly naturalistic evolutionary account of the biological underpinnings of a social contract theory of morality This social contract theory of morality contractevolism provides an evolutionary justification of the primacy of a moral principle of maximisation of the opportunities for evolutionary reproductive success ERS where maximising opportunities does not entail an obligation on individuals to choose to maximise their ERS From that primary principle the moral principles of inclusion individual sovereignty liberty and equality can be derived The implications of these principles within contractevolism are explored through an examination of patriarchy individual sovereignty and copulatory choices and overpopulation and extinction Contractevolism is grounded in evolutionary dynamics that resulted in humans and human societies The most important behavioural consequences of evolution to contractevolism are reciprocity cooperation empathy and the most important cognitive consequences are reason and behavioural modification
