Question 1

[Maximum mark: 6]

In a particular city 20 % of the inhabitants have been immunized against a certain disease. The probability of infection from the disease among those immunized is $\frac{1}{10}$, and among those not immunized the probability is $\frac{3}{4}$. If a person is chosen at random and found to be infected, find the probability that this person has been immunized.

Question 2

[Maximum mark: 6]

A target consists of three concentric circles of radii 1 m, 3 m and 5 m respectively, as shown in the diagram.

diagram not to

Nina shoots an arrow at the target. She has a probability of $\frac{1}{2}$ of hitting the target. If the arrow hits the target it does so at a random point on the target. Ten points are scored for hitting region A, six points for hitting region B, and three points for hitting region C. Find the expected number of points Nina scores each time she shoots an arrow at the target.

Survive the IB! Nathan Taber, 2011 Introducing the IB Diploma Programme Marc Abrioux, Jill Rutherford, 2013-02-14
Schools wishing to introduce the IB diploma programme are faced with major investment in terms of time effort and money in order to become authorised This manual is a resource for schools already offering the diploma as well as for prospective diploma schools The American Mathematical Monthly, 1922 Includes section Recent publications From Calculus to Computers Amy Shell-Gellasch, Dick Jardine, 2005 Classroom resource material allowing the integration of mathematics history into undergraduate mathematics teaching Mathematical Modeling of Human Performance Errors William B. Askren, Thaddeus L. Regulinski, 1969 The research investigates the feasibility of modeling human performance errors in application to the reliability analyses of man machine systems The research addresses itself to time continuous tasks with the derivation of a general mathematical model of the probability of errorless performance which is equated to human performance reliability The application of this model and the implications of the time to first error concept were tested with a laboratory experiment using a vigilance task The observed times to first miss error times to first false alarm error and times to first combined miss and false alarm errors were ordered and through classical interference theory the underlying density functions were isolated A number of distributions were tested for goodness of fit with the data The Weibull Gamma and log normal distributions emerged as relevant paradigms The normal and exponential distributions were rejected It was concluded that the derived general mathematical model of human performance reliability and the expected value of the random variable time to first human error are meaningful ways to quantify human performance of time continuous tasks Author Reminiscences of a Statistician Erich L. Lehmann, 2007-12-26 This relatively nontechnical book is the first account of the history of statistics from the Fisher revolution to the computer revolution It sketches the careers and highlights some of the work of 65 people most of them statisticians What gives the book its special character is its emphasis on the author's interaction with these people and the inclusion of many personal anecdotes Combined these portraits provide an amazing fly on the wall view of statistics during the period in question The stress is on ideas and technical material is held to a minimum Thus the book is accessible to anyone with at least an elementary background in statistics Multivariate T-Distributions and Their Applications Samuel Kotz, Saralees Nadarajah, 2004-02-16 Almost all the results available in the literature on multivariate t distributions published in the last 50 years are now collected together in this comprehensive reference Because these distributions are becoming more prominent in many applications this book is a must for any serious researcher or consultant working in multivariate analysis and statistical distributions Much of this material has never before appeared in book form The first part of the book emphasizes theoretical results of a probabilistic nature In the second part of the book these are supplemented by a variety of statistical aspects Various generalizations and applications are dealt with in the final chapters The material on estimation and regression models is of special value for practitioners in statistics and economics A comprehensive bibliography of over 350 references is included
