Assessing Negative Response Bias in Competency to Stand Trial Evaluations Steven J. Rubenzer, 2018-03-22 Evaluations of a defendant's competence to stand trial CST are probably the most frequently performed forensic evaluations with estimates in the United States ranging from 60 000 to 70 000 annually In order for CST evaluations to be considered thorough and accurate examiners must assess for possible lack of cooperation feigning or malingering the intentional production or gross exaggeration of false or grossly exaggerated physical or psychiatric symptoms motivated by external incentives Yet there are accounts that CST examiners often do not assess for negative response bias and even if they do nevertheless fail to identify a considerable number of examinees that do feign

Assessing Negative Response Bias in Competency to Stand Trial Evaluations provides readers with a comprehensive guide to assessing whether a defendant has feigned mental impairment during a competency to stand trial evaluation or simply did not put forth his/her best effort This book reviews the literature on assessing feigning and negative response bias with particular focus on issues tests and data relevant to CST evaluations and examines proposed criteria and statistical methods of determining and classifying assessment results It introduces readers to aspects of the vibrant neuropsychological response style literature an area many forensic psychologists appear to have overlooked Additionally it offers recommendations for research and policy regarding the parameters of CST assessment
