Historic Housekeeping Instruction Manual:

Manual for Museums Ralph H. Lewis, 1976      Maintaining Historic Buildings, 1990      Grain and Fire Rebecca Sharpless, 2022-03-17 While a luscious layer cake may exemplify the towering glory of southern baking like everything about the American South baking is far more complicated than it seems Rebecca Sharpless here weaves a brilliant chronicle vast in perspective and entertaining in detail revealing how three global food traditions Indigenous American European and African collided with and merged in the economies cultures and foodways of the South to create what we know as the southern baking tradition Recognizing that sentiments around southern baking run deep Sharpless takes delight in deflating stereotypes as she delves into the surprising realities underlying the creation and consumption of baked goods People who controlled the food supply in the South used baking to reinforce their power and make social distinctions Who used white cornmeal and who used yellow who put sugar in their cornbread and who did not had traditional meanings for southerners as did the proportions of flour fat and liquid in biscuits By the twentieth century however the popularity of convenience foods and mixes exploded in the region as it did nationwide Still while some regional distinctions have waned baking in the South continues to be a remarkable and remarkably tasty source of identity and entrepreneurship      Historical Perspectives on Preventive Conservation Sarah Staniforth, Getty Conservation Institute, 2013 The present volume provides a selection from more than sixty five texts tracing the development of this important area of conservation The texts range chronologically from antiquity to the present day They cover a wide range of subjects including philosophies of preventive conservation early traditions of housekeeping the museum environment relative humidity and temperature pollution biodeterioration and light There is also a generous selection of readings discussing future trends P 4 of cover      Museum Curatorship in the National Park Service, 1904-1982 Ralph H. Lewis, 1993      Historic Real Estate Whitney Martinko, 2020-05-15 A detailed study of early historical preservation efforts between the 1780s and the 1850s In Historic Real Estate Whitney Martinko shows how Americans in the fledgling United States pointed to evidence of the past in the world around them and debated whether and how to preserve historic structures as permanent features of the new nation s landscape From Indigenous mounds in the Ohio Valley to Independence Hall in Philadelphia from Benjamin Franklin s childhood home in Boston to St Philip s Episcopal Church in Charleston South Carolina from Dutch colonial manors of the Hudson Valley to Henry Clay s Kentucky estate early advocates of preservation strove not only to place boundaries on competitive real estate markets but also to determine what should not be for sale how consumers should behave and how certain types of labor should be valued Before historic preservation existed as we know it today many Americans articulated eclectic and sometimes contradictory definitions of architectural preservation to work out practical strategies for defining the relationship between public good and private profit In arguing for the preservation of houses of worship and Indigenous earthworks for example some invoked the public interest of their stewards to strengthen corporate control of these collective spaces Meanwhile businessmen and political partisans adopted preservation of commercial sites to create opportunities for and limits on individual profit in a growing marketplace of goods And owners of old houses and ancestral estates developed methods of preservation to reconcile competing demands for the seclusion of and access to American homes to shape the ways that capitalism affected family economies In these ways individuals harnessed preservation to garner political economic and social profit from the performance of public service Ultimately Martinko argues by portraying the problems of the real estate market as social rather than economic advocates of preservation affirmed a capitalist system of land development by promising to make it moral
