

RESEARCH OBJECTIVES THAT HAVE INSPIRED THE STUDY

10. Statistical significance (determining whether a trend is likely to be real or just a random fluctuation) is determined by the confidence interval (the range of values that are likely to be true) and the p-value (the probability of a trend being due to chance).

1. Introduction: The purpose of this study is to investigate the impact of social media on the mental health of young adults. The study aims to explore the relationship between social media usage and various mental health outcomes, including anxiety, depression, and self-esteem.

2. Methodology: The study employed a quantitative research design, utilizing a survey questionnaire to collect data from a sample of young adults. The questionnaire included items related to social media usage patterns and mental health symptoms. Statistical analysis was conducted to identify correlations and trends.

3. Results: The findings of the study indicate a positive correlation between increased social media usage and higher levels of anxiety and depression. Specifically, individuals who reported spending more time on social media platforms also reported higher scores on measures of anxiety and depression. Conversely, there was a negative correlation between social media usage and self-esteem, suggesting that excessive use may lead to lower self-esteem.

4. Conclusion: The study suggests that while social media offers numerous benefits, it also poses risks to mental health, particularly for young adults. Excessive use of social media may contribute to increased anxiety and depression, while potentially undermining self-esteem. Further research is needed to explore the underlying mechanisms of these relationships and to develop interventions to mitigate the negative impacts of social media on mental health.

5. Implications: The findings of this study have important implications for mental health professionals, educators, and parents. It highlights the need for increased awareness and education regarding the potential risks of social media to mental health. Additionally, it suggests the importance of promoting healthy digital habits and providing support for individuals experiencing mental health challenges related to social media use.
