

Philosophy of Education

9 pages | 2114 words

It was Chesterton, an English essayist, who once said that "the most practical thing about a man is his view of the universe – his philosophy" (Hocking 4). Man's philosophy is generally referred to as the sum of all his beliefs and views about the world which guide his actions. His beliefs comprise all those judgments, whether they are based on convictions or impressions, which he habitually lives by. During the pre-service education and throughout the teaching career, teachers will have to face up to what it means to live and to teach in a society that gives the individual freedom to hold different beliefs and values. In this society there seems to be no single "right" way of thinking about and doing things in education. How teachers deal with school matters – objectives, contents, and methods – depend very much on their own individual beliefs and values. They should be willing to take responsibility for giving their own answers to many problems they will meet in their classrooms regarding goals and values, and ways of teaching their students.

1. Organizing your classroom & materials. The teacher in the classroom is a veritable manager. The success of the activities in the classroom depends on the ability of the teacher as classroom manager. He is at the helm of all activities, and these activities will succeed depending on how well he can steer and guide them properly. One of the most difficult problems that confront a beginning teacher is classroom management. Unfortunately, he does not learn techniques of proper classroom management from books. He merely gets suggestions on how to manage a class, but there is nothing like teaching experience that will really teach him all the tricks of classroom management. Hence, classroom management is one of the main concerns of teachers, administrators, and parents. If the school is to live up to the community's expectation that it is a learning-producing enterprise, the individual classrooms which comprise the school must contribute to the school's educational productivity. Learning is the central goal of the total school operation, and teaching is the school's basic production technique. Effective teaching and effective learning take place in well-managed classrooms. When class time is consumed by management problems, students are the losers, for little real learning takes place. As every teacher knows, good classroom management is one of the strongest influences on academic learning.

2. Choosing rules & procedures. A well managed classroom is hardly possible without laws, regulations, and conventions. The classroom in itself is a society and needs its own rules and regulations to keep peace and harmony within it. Certain classroom activities can be made automatic in the sense that they can be performed without much thought, especially when they have become habitual. Such activities, we say, have become routinized. It is apparent that routinizing classroom rules and procedures can help the teacher a lot in classroom management. There are no hard-and-fast rules as to which activities can be reduced to routine. Routinizing would depend on such factors as size of the class, the nature of students, materials available, arrangement of equipment, and the...
