as they are removed. Depending on model, it may be necessary to pull the housing forwards to allow the top cover to be lifted off (see illustrations).

All models

- 3 Lift out the filter element (see illustration).
- 4 Remove any debris that may have collected inside the air cleaner.
- 5 Fit a new air filter element in position, noting any direction-of-fitting markings and ensuring that the edges are securely seated.
- 6 Re-fit the air cleaner top-cover and secure with the screws or clips, as applicable.

27 Automatic transmission fluid level check

Checking the fluid level by the DfV method is not advisable: no dipstick is provided. The

28 Fuel filter renewal

Warning: Refer to the notes in Safety first, and follow them implicitly. Petrol is a highly-dangerous and volatile liquid, and the precautions necessary when handling it cannot be overstressed.

- 1 The fuel filter is situated underneath the rear of the vehicle, to the rear of the fuel tank (see illustration). To gain access to the filter, check the front wheels, then jack up the rear of the vehicle and support it securely on axle stands.

- 2 Depressurise the fuel system with reference to the relevant Part of Chapter 4.

- 3 If you have them, fit hose clamps to the filter inlet and outlet hoses. These are not essential, but even with the system depressurised, there will still be an amount of petrol in the pipes (and the old filter), and this will siphon out when the pipes are disconnected. Even with hose clamps fitted, the old filter will contain some fuel, so have some rags ready to soak up any spillage.

26.3 Removing the air filter element - single-point injection model shown

- 4 Release the hose clips and detach the hoses from the filter. If clamp-type clips are used, discard them and fit proper petrol pipe clips when reassembling. Similarly, if the fuel hoses show any sign of perishing or cracking, particularly at the hose ends or where the hose enters the metal and fitting, renew the hoses.

- 5 Before removing the filter, note any direction-of-flow markings on the filter body, and check against the new filter - the arrow should point in the direction of fuel flow towards the black fuel supply pipe leading to the front of the car.

- 6 Undo the retaining clamp screw and remove the old filter.

- 7 Fit the new filter into position, with the flow marking arrow correctly orientated, and secure with the retaining clamp.

- 8 Reconnect the fuel hoses using new clips if necessary. Ensure that no dirt is allowed to enter the hoses or filter connections. Release the hose clamps.

- 9 Start the engine (there may be a delay as the system re-pressurises and the new filter fills with fuel). Let the engine run for several minutes while you check the filter hose connections for leaks.

- 10 Where applicable, fit the protective undershield and secure with the retaining clips, then lower the vehicle to the ground.

Warning: Dispose safely of the old filter; it will be highly flammable, and may explode if thrown on a fire.

29 Timing belt renewal

Note: VdV specify a timing belt renewal interval of 60 000 miles (96 000 km). However, if the vehicle is used mainly for short journeys or a lot of stop-start driving, we recommend that this shorter interval is adhered to. The actual belt renewal interval is very much up to the individual owner but, bearing in mind that severe engine damage will result if the belt breaks in use, we recommend you err on the side of caution.

Refer to Chapter 2A.
