Life after Stress M. Shaffer, 2012-12-06 STRESS STYLES It is late afternoon on the last Friday of the month At the bank the lines of customers waiting to deposit their paychecks or to withdraw money for the weekend have stretched practically to the front doors At one window a customer finishes and the next person a merchant steps up He opens a cloth bag and produces a stack of checks cash and deposit slips almost two inches thick The teller's eyes widen This will be at least ten minutes work maybe fifteen What about those other customers waiting in line How will they react Interestingly enough the reactions of the customers waiting in line behind the merchant vary considerably Gary Johnson for instance is furious He grinds his cigarette under his heel and mutters about inconsiderate jerks who wait until the last minute to deposit their week's receipts Gary shifts back and forth from foot to foot the swaying of his body telegraphing his frustration He probes his pockets to see whether any of his antacid mints are left Finding none he curses under his breath and lights another cigarette

Chemistry of the Lower Atmosphere S. Rasool, 2012-12-06 About three years ago Catherine de Berg and I published a short article in Nature in which we attempted to explain why the chemistry of the atmosphere of the Earth is today so completely different from that of our two neighboring planets Mars and Venus Our atmosphere is composed mainly of N₂ and O with traces of A H₂ CO₂ etc while the atmospheres of both Mars and Venus are almost entirely made up of CO₂ Also the Earth appears to be the only one of the three planets which has oceans of liquid water on the surface Since the presence of liquid water on Earth is probably an essential requirement for life to have originated and evolved to its present state the question of the apparent absence of liquid water on Mars and Venus suddenly acquires significant proportions In our paper in Nature and later in a more detailed discussion of the subject Planetary Atmospheres in Exobiology edited by C Ponnamperna North Holland Publishing Co we tried to describe why we believe that in the early history of the solar system all the terrestrial planets lost the atmospheres of H₂ and He which they had acquired from the solar nebula at the time of their formation These planets completely devoid of atmospheres like the Moon today started accumulating new gases which were exhumed from the interior by the commencement of volcanic activity

Intrinsic Motivation and Self-Determination in Human Behavior Edward L. Deci, Richard M. Ryan, 2013-06-29 Early in this century most empirically oriented psychologists believed that all motivation was based in the physiology of a set of non nervous system tissue needs The theories of that era reflected this belief and used it in an attempt to explain an increasing number of phenomena It was not until the 1950s that it became irrefutably clear that much of human motivation is based not in these drives but rather in a set of innate psychological needs Their physiological basis is less understood and as concepts these needs lend themselves more easily to psychological than to physiological theorizing The convergence of evidence from a variety of scholarly efforts suggests that there are three such needs self determination competence and interpersonal relatedness This book is primarily about self determination and competence with particular emphasis on the former and about the processes and structures that relate to these needs The need for interpersonal relatedness while no less important remains to be explored and the findings from those explorations will need to be integrated with the present theory to develop a broad organismic theory of human motivation. Thus far we have articulated self-determination theory which is offered as a working theory, a theory in the making. To stimulate the research that will allow it to evolve further we have stated self-determination theory in the form of minitheories that relate to more circumscribed domains and we have developed paradigms for testing predictions from the various minitheories. Handbook of Construction Safety, Health and Well-being in the Industry 4.0 Era Patrick Manu, Gao Shang, Paulo Jorge Silva Bartolo, Valerie Francis, Anil Sawhney, 2023-05-12. This Handbook seeks to examine and advance current understanding of the confluence of construction health safety and well-being and the broad range of Industry 4.0 technologies in use in the architecture engineering and construction AEC industry. Globally the construction sector accounts for more than 100 000 occupational fatalities annually. In many countries reports of work-related accidents, injuries and illnesses are commonplace and there is an urgent need to improve the occupational safety and health OSH outlook of the construction sector. The fourth industrial revolution presents opportunities to leverage modern technologies e.g. big data, artificial intelligence, automation, sensors, AR, VR and robotics to improve the poor OSH performance of the construction industry. However, embracing such technologies could also induce unintended adverse consequences for the safety, health and well-being of construction workers. Therefore, the realisation of the opportunities as well as the mitigation of potentially adverse consequences requires research-informed holistic insights around the union of Industry 4.0 and construction occupational safety and health management. This cutting-edge volume addresses a significant gap in literature by bringing together experienced academics and researchers to highlight the drivers, opportunities and drawbacks of the merging of Industry 4.0 with construction health safety and well-being. After a detailed introductory section which highlights key issues and challenges, section one covers the application of a broad range of digital technologies; then section two discusses the application of industrial production and cyber-physical systems in the context of construction safety and health management. Readers from a broad range of AEC backgrounds as well as safety professionals and technologists will come to understand how the technologies are applied and the resulting OSH benefits as well as potential drawbacks.

Vygotsky's Sociocultural Psychology and its Contemporary Applications Carl Ratner, 2013-06-29. The social character of psychological phenomena has never been easy to comprehend. Despite the fact that an intricate set of social relations forms our most intimate thoughts, feelings and actions, we believe that psychology originates inside our body in genes, hormones, the brain and free will. Perhaps this asocial view stems from the alienated nature of most societies which makes individual activity appear to be estranged from social relations. One might have thought that the emergence of scientific psychology would have disclosed the social character of activity, but overlooked. Unfortunately, a century and a half of naive experience in psychology has failed to comprehend the elusive social character of psychological phenomena. Psychological science has evidently been subjugated by the mystifying ideology of society. This book aims to comprehend the social character of psychological functioning I argue that psychological functions are quintessentially social in nature and that this social character must be comprehended if psychological knowledge and practice are to advance. The social nature of psychological phenomena consists in the fact that they are constructed by individuals in the process of social interaction; they depend upon properties of social interaction; one of their primary purposes is facilitating social interaction; and they embody the specific character of historically bound social relations. This viewpoint is known as sociohistorical psychology. It was articulated most profoundly and comprehensively by the Russian psychologists Lev Vygotsky and Alexander Luria during the 1920s and 1930s.
