

My personal goal is to seek a career in teaching and research in Industrial and Organizational Psychology. My long-term goal is to become a tenured professor in a top tier University that will allow me to teach and perform research. Although I expect some administrative duties, I do not want a full time administrative position (i.e. I do not have the desire to become a department chair or a college Dean). From my research it appears that the career path towards becoming a tenured university professor typically starts with a tenure track Assistant professor position. Although, in theory, it is possible to obtain an Assistant Professor position in a University, these positions are hard to find. Most new Ph.D. who desire to obtain an Academic position, work in a post doctoral position to establish connections, write many journal papers before making the transition from graduate school to an Assistant Professor. New Assistant professor appointments come with many responsibilities. Typical teaching assignments range from 2 to 3 classes per semester with little time for research. Research duties include actively and aggressively seeking funding opportunities and publishing peer reviewed journal papers. Also on the list includes attending conferences and scientific meetings. Most Universities also expect Assistant Professors to serve on campus committees. After 5 to 7 years, the next step is to
