Indian English and the Fiction of National Literature Rosemary Marangoly George, 2013-11-21 During the twentieth century at the height of the independence movement and after Indian literary writing in English was entrusted with the task of consolidating the image of a unified seemingly caste free modernising India for consumption both at home and abroad This led to a critical insistence on the proximity of the national and the literary which in turn led to the canonisation of certain writers and themes and the dismissal of others Examining English anthologies of Indian literature as well as the establishment of the Sahitya Akademi the national academy of letters and the work of R K Narayan and Mulk Raj Anand among others Rosemary Marangoly George exposes the painstaking efforts that went into the elaboration of a national literature in English for independent India even while deliberating the fundamental limitations of using a nation centric critical framework for reading literary works

Imperial Wine Jennifer Regan-Lefebvre, 2024-04-23 A fascinating and approachable deep dive into the colonial roots of the global wine industry Imperial Wine is a bold rigorous history of Britain's surprising role in creating the wine industries of Australia South Africa and New Zealand Here historian Jennifer Regan Lefebvre bridges the genres of global commodity history and imperial history presenting provocative new research in an accessible narrative This is the first book to argue that today's global wine industry exists as a result of settler colonialism and that imperialism was central not incidental to viticulture in the British colonies Wineries were established almost immediately after the colonization of South Africa Australia and New Zealand as part of a civilizing mission tidy vines heavy with fruit were symbolic of Britain's subordination of foreign lands Economically and culturally nineteenth century settler winemakers saw the British market as paramount However British drinkers were apathetic towards what they pejoratively called colonial wine The tables only began to turn after the First World War when colonial wines were marketed as cheap and patriotic and started to find their niche among middle and working class British drinkers This trend combined with social and cultural shifts after the Second World War laid the foundation for the New World revolution in the 1980s making Britain into a confirmed country of wine drinkers and a massive market for New World wines These New World producers may have only received critical acclaim in the late twentieth century but Imperial Wine shows that they had spent centuries wooing and indeed manufacturing a British market for inexpensive colonial wines This book is sure to satisfy any curious reader who savors the complex stories behind this commodity chain
