Technologies and Approaches to Reducing the Fuel Consumption of Medium- and Heavy-Duty Vehicles National Research Council, Transportation Research Board, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Committee to Assess Fuel Economy Technologies for Medium- and Heavy-Duty Vehicles, 2010-07-30 Technologies and Approaches to Reducing the Fuel Consumption of Medium and Heavy Duty Vehicles evaluates various technologies and methods that could improve the fuel economy of medium and heavy duty vehicles such as tractor trailers transit buses and work trucks The book also recommends approaches that federal agencies could use to regulate these vehicles fuel consumption Currently there are no fuel consumption standards for such vehicles which account for about 26 percent of the transportation fuel used in the U S The miles per gallon measure used to regulate the fuel economy of passenger cars is not appropriate for medium and heavy duty vehicles which are designed above all to carry loads efficiently Instead any regulation of medium and heavy duty vehicles should use a metric that reflects the efficiency with which a vehicle moves goods or passengers such as gallons per ton mile a unit that reflects the amount of fuel a vehicle would use to carry a ton of goods one mile This is called load specific fuel consumption LSFC The book estimates the improvements that various technologies could achieve over the next decade in seven vehicle types For example using advanced diesel engines in tractor trailers could lower their fuel consumption by up to 20 percent by 2020 and improved aerodynamics could yield an 11 percent reduction Hybrid powertrains could lower the fuel consumption of vehicles that stop frequently such as garbage trucks and transit buses by as much 35 percent in the same time frame

Silviculture, 1989 Utilization of Residual Forest Biomass Pentti Hakkila, 2012-12-06 An increase in the demand for wood results in improved recovery and less residual biomass in the forests Paradoxically interest in forest residue as a renewable source of raw material seems to be in a reverse ratio to its availability in a certain area Finland and Sweden are probably more dependent on forestry and forest industries than any other developed countries in the world A sufficiency of raw material for integrated forest industries is vital for the national economy of both countries and a great deal of attention is being paid to the long term potential of unutilized biomass left behind in logging operations Furthermore since these countries possess no reserves of fossil fuels and since their per capita consumption of primary energy is exceptionally high they also consider unmerchantable forest biomass a realistic source of indigenous energy A joint Nordic research project on harvesting and utilization of logging residue was carried out in 1969 1976 under the auspices of the Nordic Research Council on Forest Operations This fruitful cooperation soon gave rise to related national projects in Sweden Finland Norway and Denmark stimulating further research and producing practical applications Concurrently particularly after the worldwide energy crisis in 1973 research on all aspects of utilization of forest biomass mushroomed in the United States Canada and the Soviet Union An explosive increase occurred in both the number and diversity of biomass studies
