Neo-Feminist Cinema Hilary Radner, 2010-11-01 What lies behind current feminist discontent with contemporary cinema Through a combination of cultural and industry analysis Hilary Radner's Neo Feminist Cinema Girly Films Chick Flicks and Consumer Culture shows how the needs of conglomerate Hollywood have encouraged an emphasis on consumer culture within films made for women By exploring a number of representative girly films including Pretty Woman Legally Blonde Maid in Manhattan The Devil Wears Prada and Sex and the City The Movie Radner proposes that rather than being post feminist as is usually assumed such films are better described as neo feminist Examining their narrative format as it revolves around the story of an ambitious unmarried woman who defines herself through consumer culture as much as through work or romance Radner argues that these films exemplify neo liberalist values rather than those of feminism As such Neo Feminist Cinema offers a new explanation as to why feminist oriented scholars and audiences who are seeking more than labels and love from their film experience have viewed recent girly films as a betrayal of second wave feminism and why on the other hand such films have proven to be so successful at the box office distribution contexts that currently represent American women's independent cinema. With the consolidation of indie culture in the 21st century, female filmmakers face an increasingly indifferent climate. Within this sector, women work across all aspects of writing, direction, production, editing, and design, yet the dominant narrative continues to construe an over-represented white male auteurs such as Quentin Tarantino or Wes Anderson as the face of indie discourse. Defying the formulaic myths of the mainstream chick flick and the ideological and experimental radicalism of feminist counter cinema alike, women's indie filmmaking is neither ironic popular nor political enough to be readily absorbed into pre-existing categories. This groundbreaking collection, the first sustained examination of the work of female practitioners within American independent cinema, reclaims the difference of female indie filmmaking. Through a variety of case studies of directors, writers, and producers such as Ava DuVernay, Lena Dunham, and Christine Vachon, contributors explore the innovation of a range of female practitioners by attending to the sensibilities, ideologies, and industrial practices that distinguish their work while embracing the aim between space in which the narratives they represent and embody can be revealed.

Key Features: Covers American women's independent cinema since the late 1970s. Analyses the work of acclaimed but critically overlooked female practitioners such as Kelly Reichardt, Christine Vachon, Miranda July, Kasi Lemmons, Nicole Holofcener, Mira Nair, Lisa Cholodenko, Megan Ellison, Lynn Shelton, Ava DuVernay, Mary Harron, and Debra Granik. Distinguishes four different approaches to analysing women's independent cinema through production and industry perspectives, genre, and other classificatory modalities: political, cultural, social, and professional identities; and collaborative and collectivist practices.

This edition offers new material on streaming services, the relationship between demographics and entertainment spending, electromagnetic spectrum for broadcasters, and revised FASB accounting rules for film and television.

Financial analysts and investors economists industry executives accountants lawyers regulators and journalists as well as students preparing to join these professionals will benefit from this invaluable source Media and Translation Dror Abend-David, 2014-07-31 Over the last decade there has been a dramatic increase in publications on media and translation In fact there are those who believe that so much has been published in this field that any further publications are superfluous But if one views media and translation as anything ranging from film and television drama to news casting commercials video games web pages and electronic street signs it would seem that research in media and translation has barely scratched the surface The research in this field is shared largely by scholars in communication and translation studies often without knowledge of each other or access to their respective methods of scholarship This collection will rectify this lack of communication by bringing such scholars together and creating a context for a theoretical discussion of the entire emerging field of Media and Translation with a preference for theoretical work rather than case studies on translation and communications of various forms and through various media The Business Of Media: Change And Challenges Mónica Herrero, Steve Wildman, 2021-05-30 Advancement of the state of scholarship on media management is a three pronged process The body of knowledge on which media executives and managers can draw grows as 1 core concepts and analytical frameworks are refined augmented and occasionally supplemented or replaced by new ideas that better explain the roles of media in their larger economic and societal contexts 2 Rigorous empirical analysis probes the limitations of current understanding and raises new questions and 3 Grounded case studies extract knowledge through theoretically informed observation of situations and processes that are too complex and multi faceted for more tightly controlled statistical analyses but still are too rich in their potential to contribute to knowledge to ignore All three prongs are represented in this edited volume which draws on the best of the new research and thinking showcased at the Annual Conference of the International Media Management Academic Association held during October 24 25 2014 in Pamplona Spain The book s 10 chapters are organized into three main sections that move respectively from a high level focus on core principals and fundamental challenges to effective management to more narrowly focused research but with generalizable findings on solutions to concrete and specific problems faced by media firms trying to improve their results from the services and products they offer to case studies of market level change in three very different political and economic environments The remainder of this brief introduction was written as a guide to the research and findings presented in these sections
