

9 tips for writing a school policy

School policies and procedures demonstrate your commitment with statutory requirements. Use Clifton's tips to guide you in creating and revising a policy.

1. Consult your board

Develop a policy that meets the needs of all stakeholders, including staff, students, parents, and the community. Consult with your board of directors for input and guidance on the policy.

2. Know the legal requirements

Know what laws, rules, and regulations apply to your school. Consult with your legal counsel to ensure the policy is compliant with all applicable laws.

3. Research the issue

Research the issue and gather information from a variety of sources, including experts, research, and best practices. Consider the needs of all stakeholders and the impact of the policy on the school.

4. Define the goal

Define the goal of the policy and the outcomes you want to achieve. Consider the impact of the policy on the school and the community.

5. Engage the staff in developing the policy

Engage the staff in the process of developing the policy. Consider the input and feedback of all staff members and ensure the policy is reflective of their needs and concerns.

Be consistently and consistently using the same language and terminology throughout the policy. Avoid using jargon or technical terms that may be confusing to the staff or the community.

6. Share the policy right

Share the policy with all stakeholders, including staff, students, parents, and the community. Consider the impact of the policy on the school and the community.

7. Monitor the policy for the year

Monitor the policy for the year and gather feedback from all stakeholders. Consider the impact of the policy on the school and the community.

8. Continually process

Continually process the policy and make changes as needed. Consider the impact of the policy on the school and the community.
