who are unhomed and placeless mobile rather than fixed characters who fail resist or opt out of the mandate for a home of one's own. From the tramp films of the silent era to the 2021 Oscar winning Nomadland Wojcik reveals a tension in the American imaginary between viewing homelessness as deviant and threatening or emblematic of freedom and independence. Blending social history with insights drawn from a complex array of films both canonical and fringe Wojcik effectively unhomes dominant narratives that cast aspirations for success and social mobility as the focus of American cinema reminding us that genres of precarity have been central to American cinema and the American story all along.

Social Stratification and Social Movements Sabrina Zajak, Sebastian Haunss, 2019-11-22 This volume addresses the contested relationship between social stratification and social movements in three different ways. First the authors address the relationship between social stratification and the emergence of protest mobilization. Second the texts look at social stratification and social positions to explain variations in political orientations as well as differing aims and interests of protestors. Finally the volume focuses on the socio structural composition of protestors. Social Stratification and Social Movements takes up recent attempts to reconnect research on these two fields. Instead of calling for a return of a class perspective or abandoning the classical social movement research agenda it introduces a multi dimensional perspective on stratification and social movements and broadens the view by extending the empirical analysis beyond Europe.
