AIR CONDITIONING SYSTEM

1100-1

DESCRIPTION

The air conditioning system is a closed looped gas refrigeration system. The system works on the process of evaporation and condensation of a fluid refrigerant within the closed loop. The heat from inside the cab is moved outside the cab.

There are four basic processes that must be understood in order to understand the basics of automatic air conditioning.

- Heat always moves from warmer locations to cooler locations.

- As fluid turns into a gas (boils or evaporates) it carries heat with it.
- As gas turns into a liquid (condenses) it releases heat.
- By lowering the atmospheric pressure on a liquid, the boiling point of the liquid is also lowered, allowing the liquid to evaporate quickly.
- Raising the atmospheric pressure on gas allows the gas to condense faster and form a liquid.
