The desire to establish a political legacy has emerged as a primary hidden agenda that compels state leaders and their allies to pursue the ambitious initiative of moving the capital from Jakarta to Nusantara on Kalimantan Island As a lasting monument and symbol of modernization and prosperity the Capital City of Nusantara IKN aims to reflects the enduring influence of the builder in chief of the world s third largest democracy The long term viability of this capital city megaproject as a political legacy is contingent upon the effectiveness of formal informal and cultural institutional mechanisms both prior to and following the pivotal events of the 2024 presidential election and the subsequent transition of leadership Addressing a significant gap in the literature and a timely contribution this book will be of interest to researchers in the fields of human geography Asian urban studies Southeast Asian Studies and megaproject management Museum Practice, 2002
