Gender, Politics and Land Use in Zimbabwe 1980ñ2012 Mafa, Onias, Gudhlanga, Enna S., 2015-10-19 The agrarian reform dynamics in southern Africa have to be understood within the framework of colonial land policies and legislation that were designed essentially to expropriate land and natural resource property rights from the indigenous people in favour of the white settlers. Colonial land policies institutionalised racial inequity with regard to land although conditions are not homogeneous there are broad themes that cut across the southern Africa region. Colonialism dispossessed and impoverished the people by taking away the most productive lands. Neoliberal globalization has undermined the people's well-being through direct influences on agriculture and rural economies in conjunction with policies promoted by national governments and international agencies. Another shared feature is to be found in the high rates of unemployment, poor returns to small scale agriculture, lack of access to social services such as health and education, all of which serve to erode existing livelihood activities and perpetuate relative and absolute poverty in rural areas. This comparative study on Zimbabwe's agrarian reforms may provide countries such as South Africa and Namibia with valuable lessons as they attempt their own land reforms. Conflicts between colonialists and the indigenous people in the then Rhodesia centred mainly on the land question. This inequitable distribution of land resulted in Africans waging liberation struggles in order to reclaim their land from the colonialists. In most post colonial countries calls have been made for land redistribution as a way of redressing colonial injustices in land tenure systems. The process of reclamation of land and redistributing it to the indigenous people is fraught with problems and has resulted in the present day land crisis in many parts of Africa and other continents. These are some of the issues this book examines, attempts to understand and explain from a gender perspective. Gender relations are viewed in terms of land use and ownership in pre colonial, colonial and post colonial Zimbabwe. These socially constructed roles have been found to be unequal in terms of power and decision making. It is argued that lessening of social inequalities between men and women reduces poverty, raises farm efficiency and improves natural resource management. The book emphasizes that once women are empowered the quality of life of their households improves.

Natural Resource-Based Conflicts in Rural Zimbabwe Joshua

Matanzima, Patience Chadambuka, Kirk Helliker, 2024-08-02. This book investigates the range of conflicts over land and other natural resources in contemporary Zimbabwe considering the different forms these conflicts take and the ensuing outcomes. Zimbabwe is a country rich in natural resources including land, wildlife, minerals and water resources. These resources are integral to the formal and informal livelihoods of most Zimbabweans as well as supporting many key industries. Wildlife, land and water resources are also embedded in indigenous knowledge systems, religious beliefs and rituals in many rural communities forming an important part of people's identity and sense of belonging. However, this book demonstrates the ways in which rural communities are being denied access to these resources and being displaced by extractive companies and the government. Their response is often to turn to violence to try to reclaim their lands. Drawing on original empirical research from different conflicts across Zimbabwe, the book also considers the issue in the context of problems such as climate change, human wildlife conflicts and politico-economic crises. This book will be useful to policy makers, students, conservationists and academics across the fields of sociology, human geography, development, political science and environment studies. Social

Aluta Continua Biblical Hermeneutics for Liberation Obvious Vengeyi, Joachim Kügler, 2013 This book was passed as a PhD thesis at Bayreuth University Germany The author challenges African Biblical scholars and Christian leaders to premise Biblical interpretation on the experiences of the often neglected underclasses The author argues that from a comparative historical cultural and material methodological point of view the experiences of the Zimbabwean underclasses whose collective ordeal is represented by the experiences of domestic workers are strikingly similar to those suffered by slaves among other underclasses in the biblical world In the same way religion was appropriated by the elite to validate oppression of the underclasses in the biblical world the author shows that since the colonial era Christianity in Africa through biblical interpretation among many other tactics has been an influential force on the side of the dominant class to advance their racial class and gender interests To date in Zimbabwe for example the Bible and religion in general is manipulated by the dominant minority to justify and entrench the exploitation of the majority underclasses On the other hand the author observes that the history of ancient Israel Roman colonial Palestine and colonial Zimbabwe evidences that when religion is appropriated and or the Bible is read and interpreted from the historical cultural and material conditions of the underclasses it can be a valuable resource not only for their mobilization to overthrow oppressive systems but also for justifying their resistance tactics Aluta Continua The Struggle goes on
