Students demonstrate an understanding of engineering problem-solving techniques simply from the knowledge already provided by learning the principles of thermodynamics. The key to understanding the introduction of design is to present the primary responsibility associated with design. The typical engineering culture does not require every team member who joins the problem to have the creative insight of a designer. Whether team members have design or engineering backgrounds, the student is expected to make good design, and it is essential that a team leader be someone who is capable to do this. Engineering culture requires that the engineering team work together to solve the problem. The team leader is responsible for the team's performance and the team's ability to solve the problem.
