Practice tells the story of how ordinary people grew comfortable learning from commonplace manuscripts and printed books such as almanacs medical recipe collections and herbals From the turn of the fifteenth century to the close of the sixteenth century these were the books English people read when they wanted to attend to their health or understand their place in the universe Before then these works had largely been the purview of those who could read Latin Around 1400 however medical and scientific texts became available in Middle English while manuscripts became less expensive These vernacular manuscripts invited their readers into a very old and learned conversation Hippocrates and Galen weren't distant authorities whose word was law they were trusted guides whose advice could be excerpted rearranged recombined and even altered to suit a manuscript compiler's needs This conversation continued even after the printing press arrived in England in 1476 Printers mined manuscripts for medical and scientific texts that they would publish throughout the sixteenth century though the pressures of a commercial printing market encouraged printers to package these old texts in new ways Without the weight of authority conditioning their reactions and responses to very old knowledge and with so many editions of practical books to choose from English readers grew into confident critics and purveyors of natural knowledge in their own right Melissa Reynolds reconstructs shifting attitudes toward medicine and science over two centuries of seismic change within English culture attending especially to the effects of the Reformation on attitudes toward nature and the human body Her study shows how readers learned to be discerning and selective consumers of knowledge gradually through everyday interactions with utilitarian books

The Prose Brut and Other Late Medieval Chronicles Jaclyn Rajsic, Erik Kooper, Dominique T. Hoche, 2016 Essays on the medieval chronicle tradition shedding light on history writing manuscript studies and the history of the book and the post medieval reception of such texts The histories of chronicles composed in England during the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries and onwards with a focus on texts belonging to or engaging with the Prose Brut tradition are the focus of this volume The contributors examine the composition dissemination and reception of historical texts written in Anglo Norman Latin and English including the Prose Brut chronicle c 1300 and later Castleford's Chronicle c 1327 and Nicholas Trevet's Les Cronicles c 1334 looking at questions of the processes of writing rewriting printing and editing history They cross traditional boundaries of subject and period taking multi disciplinary approaches to their studies in order to underscore the shifting historical social and political contexts in which medieval English chronicles were used and read from the fourteenth century through to the present day As such the volume honours the pioneering work of the late Professor Lister M Matheson whose research in this area demonstrated that a full understanding of medieval historical literature demands attention to both the content of the works in question and to the material circumstances of producing those works JACLYN RAJSIC is a Lecturer in Medieval Literature in the School of English and Drama at Queen Mary University of London ERIK KOOPER taught Old and Middle English at Utrecht University until his retirement in 2007 DOMINIQUE HOCHÉ is an Associate Professor at West Liberty University in West Virginia Contributors Elizabeth J Bryan Caroline D Eckhardt A S G Edwards Dan Embree Alexander L Kaufman Edward Donald Kennedy Erik Kooper Julia Marvin William Marx Krista A Murchison Heather Pagan Jaclyn Rajsic Christine M Rose Neil Weijer Phytopathology, 1918 Some issues accompanied by lists of members of the society
