Characterizing Expert and Novice Differences in Problem Solving in Heat Transfer Sarah Elizabeth Parikh, 2011. This research investigates adaptive expertise through the analysis of written open-ended questions. The open-ended questions were given to experts, advanced graduate students and to novices, undergraduates taking an introductory heat transfer course. Analysis of the experts' responses to these questions indicated that experts make qualifying statements in their responses, a newly identified characteristic of expertise. Analysis of the novices' responses indicates areas for future work in research and teaching. Additionally, the wording of the open-ended questions appears to be important; the responses to questions that asked participants to choose an outcome showed greater differences between the expert and novice participants than questions that asked participants to explain how or why something happens.

Critical Care Taylor Johnston, Steven Miller, Joseph Rumley, 2022-05-27. Critical Care: A Problem Based Learning Approach provides a comprehensive review of the dynamic and ever-changing field of critical care. Its problem-based format incorporates a vast pool of practical ABA board exam style multiple choice questions for self-assessment and is an ideal resource for exam preparation as well as ongoing clinical education among trainees and clinicians. Each of its 35 case-based chapters is accompanied by questions and answers accessible online in a full practice exam. The cases presented are unique as each chapter begins with a case description, usually a compilation of several actual cases; it then branches out through case-based questions to increasingly complex situations. This structure is designed to create an authentic experience that mirrors that of working through the nuances of a complicated clinical scenario. The discussion sections that follow offer a comprehensive approach to the chapter's subject matter thus creating a modern complete and up to date medical review of that topic Year Book ,1960
