infrastructure has very different traditions in the various modes reflecting the different nature of their infrastructure nodal vs linear but also different historical traditions of open access system integration etc Since the early 90 s various European Commission initiatives took on this issue looking mainly at the road sector where many countries had no direct access charges Heavy goods vehicles were systematically identified as the primary targets for a renewed approach to this problem What seemed an easy catch has proved to be much harder with the various countries adopting almost exclusively national approaches and the European institutions unable to drive the process This book looks at the challenges posed by this possible solutions in the technical institutional and legal dimensions The multiplicity of national situations in Europe is put in perspective the impacts of various charging schemes on regional development and on the environment are estimated and the recent policy process is analysed allowing a global view of the remaining difficulties and to make recommendations about the
