The Ageing Brain Perminder S. Sachdev, 2005-09-20 When confronted with a neurological or psychiatric disorder in an elderly individual a clinician or researcher is likely to ask how the processes of ageing have influenced the aetiology and presentation of the disorder and will impact on its efficient management There are many urban myths about ageing and some of these apply to the brain The reviews included in this book are an attempt to flush out some of these myths and arm the clinician and general researcher with the empirical facts that can be mustered to substantiate claims about ageing There are many salient questions is cognitive change to be expected in an elderly individual Is this change progressive relentless and unselective or is it focal and constrained Would every person who lived long enough develop Alzheimer s disease Do our neurones die as we get old What happens to the size of the brain and its metabolic activity How do our hormones change with age Can anti oxidants slow or even stop the process of ageing Are genes important in the ageing brain or is it all in the environment How much of what we are is due to what we eat The contributors to this book each an expert in their field have addressed some of these questions in a language simple enough for a general reader to understand The book also deals with some of the most prominent brain disorders of old age Alzheimer s disease Parkinson s disease vascular dementia and depression The focus is on the impact of ageing on these disorders The discussions lay out a broad map for the clinician dealing with neuropsychiatric disorders and the future researcher of brain ageing In a field in which the developments are too numerous for any one individual to keep pace with this book presents up to date summaries that can be a useful starting point The field of brain ageing abounds in tabloid science This book counters this by providing a strong empirical grounding and considered synthesis of the research
