1. The first step in the accounting process is to identify the business transactions that affect the business. This step is often referred to as the "analysis" step. It involves determining the nature and effect of each transaction on the accounting equation. The second step is to record the transactions in the journal. This is done by debiting and crediting the appropriate accounts. The third step is to post the journal entries to the ledger. This involves transferring the debit and credit amounts from the journal to the corresponding ledger accounts. The fourth step is to prepare the trial balance. This is a statement that lists all the ledger accounts and their balances. The fifth step is to prepare the financial statements. These include the income statement, balance sheet, and statement of cash flows. The sixth step is to close the books. This involves transferring the net income or loss from the income statement to the retained earnings account. The seventh step is to prepare the post-closing trial balance. This is a final check to ensure that the accounting equation is still in balance.

EBOOK: Financial Accounting (GE), 8e Robert Libby, Frank Hodge, Patricia Libby, 2016-04-16 EBOOK Financial Accounting GE 8e Study Guide for Use with Financial Accounting Robert Libby, Patricia A. Libby, Daniel G. Short, 2003 Libby Libby Short wrote this text based on their belief that the subject of financial accounting is inherently interesting but financial accounting textbooks are often not. They believe most financial accounting textbooks fail to demonstrate that accounting is an exciting field of study and one that is important to future careers in business. When writing this text they considered career relevance as their guide when selecting material and the need to engage the student as their guide to style pedagogy and design. Libby Libby Short is the only financial accounting text to successfully implement a real world single focus company approach in every chapter. Students and instructors have responded very favorably to the use of focus companies and the real world financial statements. The companies chosen are engaging and the decision making focus shows the relevance of financial accounting regardless of whether or not the student has chosen to major in accounting.
