, Southeast Asia Transformed Chia Lin Sien,2003 Southeast Asia with a total population of 520 million remains a region characterized by fragmentation diversity and considerable internal conflict despite the unifying influence of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations ASEAN formed some thirty five years ago In the new millennium it has lost the distinction of being one of the world s faster growing group of economies since the 1997 financial crisis While it has benefited from the winds of globalization it has now to cope with the painful adjustments to problems that stem from the inadequacies of good governance and structural changes This volume brings together the combined insights of specialists who have worked and lived in the region The theme of the book is change and transformation The authors identify the trends and forces that propel the region along and then bring in discussions on key issues In some cases they offer their views on the future of the region and recommendations for solutions The intention of the book is to offer a scholarly review of the region s development over the past half century and to provide a firm basis for forecasting its further evolution in the new millennium Trends In Astroparticle Physics - Proceedings Of The UCLA International Conference Roberto

Aikhenvald,R. M. W. Dixon,2012-12-06 Possession and Ownership brings together linguists and anthropologists in a series of cross linguistic explorations of expressions used to denote possession and ownership concepts central to most if not all the varied cultures and ideologies of humankind Possessive noun phrases can be broadly divided into three categories ownership of property whole part relations such as body and plant parts and blood and affinal kinship relations As Professor Aikhenvald shows in her extensive opening essay the same possessive noun or pronoun phrase is used in English and in many other Indo European languages to express possession of all three kinds as in Ann and her husband Henry live in the castle Henry s father built with his own hands but that this is by no means the case in all languages In some for example the grammar expresses the inalienability of consanguineal kinship and sometimes also of treasured or sacred objects Furthermore the degree to which possession and ownership are conceived as the same when possession is 100% of the law differs from one society to another and this may be reflected in their linguistic expression Like others in the series this pioneering book will be welcomed equally by linguists and anthropologists
