KREOTOPIA STEPHEN BROWN, 2016-06-05 The Degeneratron is an international research project to send probes to distant galaxies It is also a money sucking white elephant After six years and two hundred and twelve billion dollars its only accomplishment is a tenuous connection to a single boring planet That planet a foggy smelly gravel pile supports a single life form smelly Kreote plants Nothing else No insects No bacteria Not even a lousy virus Trevor Tarkington has drawn the short straw and is taking new equipment to squeeze further knowledge from the planet before the connection is lost forever Trevor's daily reports form the first part of this story Trevor's capsule arrives off target and crushes the foot of Aaron Hurleman the person waiting to help him from the transport capsule In his panic to leave the cramped cylinder Trevor also breaks Aaron's nose Aaron's injuries send him back to Earth leaving the team short handed The two remaining members are Dan Dennison project manager and expert at everything and Deborah a short round silent woman with no patience for clumsy new arrivals Dan explains that with Aaron gone it would be best if Trevor remained for the duration That solves two problems The first is manpower The second is that Dan has been keeping a secret from the controllers back on Earth and he doesn't want Trevor to return and give it away The secret is that there is another form of life one that makes even less sense than the smelly Kreote plants It consists of an army of cartoon like bugs who parade in columns while humming marching tunes Dan intends to solve the problem of the planet's bizarre life forms himself He wants no interference from Earth The disgusting smell of the planet is due to the oil produced by the Kreote plants The first explorers reported that it has a mild narcotic effect It causes dreams The oil has another property If one oil molecule develops a flaw other oil molecules copy the flaw Dan suspects that the planet is a giant library constantly storing and refreshing memories The plants produce the oil that copies and stores the memories The bugs cultivate the plants but where do the memories originate During their explorations they discover portals to a real world one rich with plants animals and clear skies but their connection to Earth is failing They have to return immediately Dan tells Trevor and Deborah that they must go back to report what they've discovered so far but he is going to remain There is an unexplored world right at his finger tips Trevor and Deborah return to the cylinder but at the last moment Deborah decides that she can't abandon Dan As soon as Trevor crawls inside she slams the hatch shut and sends him back alone Trevor realizes that all of their records are back on the fog world He has nothing to back up his tales of marching bugs and alternate worlds Worse the people on Earth will have to take his word for it that he didn't deliberately abandon the rest of the team to slow starvation on a hellish planet

Vowelless Crosswords Frank Longo, 2009-06 What's better than crosswords? That's right crosswords with no vowels At first these challenging but fiendishly fun puzzles look like the usual crossword But there's a devilish twist you write only the consonants in the boxes not the vowels So when you look at the grid there's no quick way to know exactly how many letters make up the right solution Plus because you don't need as many spaces for each word the phrases can be longer than usual and that makes the grids wide open and ratchets up the difficulty level For those who need a little extra help there's a hints section to
