Schaefer, 2010-07-28 The need for a laboratory and field manual to assist with the evaluation of juvenile skeletal material is long overdue This resource is essential for the practising osteoarchaeologist and forensic anthropologist who requires a quick reliable and easy to use reference to aid in the identification siding and aging of juvenile osseous material While excellent reference books on juvenile osteology are currently available no pre existing source adequately fills this particular niche in the market This field manual is designed with practicality as its primary directive Descriptions of each bone contain 1 morphological characteristics useful for identification 2 other elements with which the bone may be confused 2 tips for siding 3 illustrations of varying developmental phases 4 data useful for ageing and 5 a summary of developmental timings Concise bullet style descriptions assist with quick retrieval of information Unique to this manual is the presentation of data collected from a variety of populations utilizing a range of observational methods as an alternative to providing one overall aging summary that is derived from a compilation of many individual sources This manual provides a host of data on a variety of populations to enable the user to select the reference most applicable to their needs The final chapter combines information from each bone to provide a summary of developmental changes occurring at different life stages to act as an immediate ready reckoner for the knowledgeable practitioner It also provides forms useful for documenting juvenile material and diagrams to help with the recognition of commingled juvenile remains The manual is a must for anyone responsible for the evaluation of juvenile osseous material through dry bone assessment radiographs sonograms and or CT scans Identifies every component of the developing skeleton Provides detailed analysis of juvenile skeletal remains and the development of bone as a tissue Summarizes key morphological stages in the development of every bone Provides data on a variety of populations to enable the user to select the reference most applicable to their needs Focuses on practicality with direct bullet style descriptions Provides forms for documenting juvenile material Provides diagrams to help with the recognition of commingled juvenile remains Final chapter provides summary of developmental changes occurring at different life stages to act as an immediate ready reckoner for the practitioner The Osteology of Infants and Children Brenda J. Baker, Tosha

L. Dupras, Matthew W. Tocheri, 2005-07-27 Most archaeologists and bioarchaeologists receive little or no training in the recognition of skeletal remains of fetuses infants and children Yet many research sites may contain such materials Without a framework for identifying the bones or the excavation techniques suited to their recovery archaeologists may often overlook subadult skeletal remains or even confuse them with animal bones The Osteology of Infants and Children fills the need for a field and lab manual on this important topic and provides a supplemental textbook for human osteology courses Focusing on juvenile skeletons their recovery and identification and siding in both field and lab settings the volume provides basic descriptions and careful illustrations of each skeletal element at varying stages of development along with sections on differentiation from other bones and siding tips The book offers detailed treatment of the skull and teeth including the cranial vault and facial bones and examines the infracranial skeleton vertebrae pelvis chest shoulders arms hands legs and feet A quick reference guide explains age estimation and identification templates The illustrations are enhanced by photographs from two recent archaeology projects in Egypt at Abydos and Dakhleh Oasis The extensive collection of fetal and child remains from these sites provides new reference material unavailable in previous publications making this manual an unparalleled resource in the field of physical anthropology

Human Remains & Museum Practice Unesco. General

Conference, 2006 Human Remains and Museum Practice reflects the discussions held at the Museum of London as part of an international symposium on the political and ethical dimensions of the collection and display of human remains in museums. It explores fundamental issues of collecting and displaying human remains including ethics interpretation and repatriation as they apply in different parts of the world. The first section looks at the overriding issues whilst the second part describes the practices in different parts of the world.

Comparative Osteology Bradley Adams, Pam Crabtree, 2011-08-12 In the forensic context it is quite common for nonhuman bones to be confused with human remains and end up in the medical examiner or coroner system. It is also quite common for skeletal remains both human and nonhuman to be discovered in archaeological contexts. While the difference between human and nonhuman bones is often very striking it can also be quite subtle. Fragmentation only compounds the problem. The ability to differentiate between human and nonhuman bones is dependent on the training of the analyst and the available reference and/or comparative material. Comparative Osteology is a photographic atlas of common North American animal bones designed for use as a laboratory and field guide by the forensic scientist or archaeologist. The intent of the guide is not to be inclusive of all animals but rather to present some of the most common species which also have the highest likelihood of being potentially confused with human remains. An affordably priced compact laboratory field manual comparing human and nonhuman bones. Contains almost 600 high quality black and white images and diagrams including inch and centimeter scales with each photograph. Written by the foremost forensic scientists with decades of experience in the laboratory and as expert witnesses. An additional Companion Web site hosts images from the volume the reader can magnify and zoom into to see specific landmarks and features on bones. <http://booksite.academicpress.com/9780123884374>

A Review of Human Osteology--A Laboratory and Field Manual Third Edition M. Yaşar Işcan, 1988 This is a book that the author should be proud of for its success in North American osteology. This success can be measured by the fact that it is in its third edition and the first two went through their sixth and fourth printings respectively since it was first published in 1971. This third edition unlike the second is completely revised and updated throughout. It is 40 pages longer and contains 54 tables and 190 figures, 11 tables and 32 figures more than the 1979 edition. The font size is larger and the book is available in both spiral and bound forms. While I personally preferred the bound form my students disagreed.

Forensic Anthropology Megan B. Brickley, Roxana Ferllini, 2007 This important new text contains the first collection of forensic anthropology case studies to be published from Europe. Forensic Anthropology Case Studies From Europe aims to highlight recent developments in the discipline within Europe and to allow comparisons to be made between work done in various European countries and the Americas. This book is comprehensive with nineteen contributors providing case studies from recent work undertaken across twelve European countries including three chapters covering the work of forensic anthropologists in cases that involve human rights issues in the Balkan region. The book not only highlights the history and development of forensic anthropology in Europe but also illustrates the diversity of work the different academic backgrounds of those practicing in the field and the different approach that they have towards the work that they undertake making this book unique In addition to covering the work undertaken in a number of European countries the case studies presented cover a range of issues dealt with by forensic anthropologists from around the world including stab wounds blunt force trauma gunshot wounds dismemberment burning personal identification including issues relating to the investigation of ancestry in European investigations juvenile human remains the work of forensic anthropologists in unsolved cases and work undertaken to eliminate discoveries of human remains from police investigations The final chapter of the book explores new developments in the field of forensic anthropology with gait analysis and facial recognition of a living individual based on analysis of CCTV footage This book is primarily designed for students of forensic anthropology and those engaged in forensic anthropological work in various areas of the world Each chapter contains clear up to date references and a full discussion of the techniques applied which also make this book accessible for the nonspecialist reader
