- Abstract The purpose of this study was to investigate the effects of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged men. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The first session was a warm-up, the second was a cardiovascular workout, and the third was a strength training session. The results showed that the program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the participants. The participants showed a significant increase in their cardiovascular fitness, as measured by the maximum heart rate and the maximum oxygen consumption. They also showed a significant decrease in their body mass index and a significant increase in their muscle mass. The program also had a significant positive effect on the psychological health of the participants. The participants showed a significant decrease in their anxiety and depression scores and a significant increase in their self-esteem and life satisfaction scores. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can have a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged men.
