McCann,2016-03-10 In recent years the United Kingdom has become a more and more divided society with inequality between the regions as marked as it has ever been In a landmark analysis of the current state of Britain s regional development Philip McCann utilises current statistics examines historical trends and makes pertinent international comparisons to assess the state of the nation The UK Regional National Economic Problem brings attention to the highly centralised top down governance structure that the UK deploys and demonstrates that it is less than ideally placed to rectify these inequalities The North South divide in the UK has never been greater and the rising inequalities are evident in almost all aspects of the economy including productivity incomes employment status and wealth Whilst the traditional economic dominance of London and its hinterland has continued along with relative resilience in the South West of England and Scotland in contrast the Midlands the North of England Northern Ireland and Wales lag behind by most measures of prosperity This inequality is greatly limiting national economic performance and the fact that Britain has a below average standard of living by European and OECD terms has been ignored The UK s economic and governance inequality is unlikely to be fundamentally rebalanced by the current governance and connectivity trends although this definitive study suggests that some areas of improvement are possible if they are well implemented This pivotal analysis is essential reading for postgraduate students in economics and urban studies as well as researchers and policy makers in local and central government

 Hollis,2020-10-26 This book critically examines the global diffusion and local reception of resilience through the implementation of Disaster Risk Reduction DRR programmes in Pacific and Caribbean island states Global efforts to strengthen local disaster resilience capacities have become a staple of international development activity in recent decades yet the successful implementation of DRR projects designed to strengthen local resilience remains elusive While there are pockets of success a gap remains between global expectations and local realities Through a critical realist study of global and local worldviews of resilience in the Pacific and Caribbean islands this book argues that the global advocacy of DRR remains inadequate because of a failure to prioritise a person orientated ethics in its conceptualization of disaster resilience This regional comparison provides a valuable lens to understand the underlying social structures that makes resilience possible and the extent to which local governments communities and persons interpret and modify their behaviour on risk when faced with the global message on resilience This book will be of much interest to students of resilience risk management development studies and area studies
