Interdisciplinary Essays on Environment and Culture Luigi Manca, Jean-Marie Kauth, 2015-12-24 This is a collection of essays about the media the environment and the whole of humanity at the brink of extinction As the demands of overpopulation and of an unsustainable consumer economy dry up existing natural resources and destroy vital ecosystems that we need to survive the corporate controlled media saturate worldwide audiences with a barrage of hypnotic images and narratives to stimulate over consumption and to distract us from the consequences of rampant consumerism while remaining silent about the systematic destruction of the environment and our future Academicians from the across the sciences the social sciences the arts and the humanities engage in an interdisciplinary discussion informed by a vision of an interconnected humanity and focused on the role of the media in forging public discourse Contributors to the collection argue that today s media are failing humanity Rather than providing pictures of reality on which the world s citizens can act the corporate controlled media are widely used as instruments of commercial and political propaganda creating an immense web of images and narratives that their creators know to be not true fabrications designed to sell to manipulate in a sense to enslave worldwide audiences At the core of the discussion in this book is a utopian vision of one unified humanity billions of people whose destinies and dreams are imbricated and interdependent and who share the same world the same habitats It is a vision of a world that cherishes diversity but is also united a world where our differences are no longer a cause for conflict and where separate countries or separate ethnic or religious communities no longer have to compete or wage war to exploit available resources As extensions of humans the media can be instruments of salvation instead of destruction liberation instead of oppression But first we must recognize the challenges we face

Classes of Labour Jonathan Parry, 2020-03-20 Classes of Labour Work and Life in a Central Indian Steel Town is a classic in the social sciences The rigour and richness of the ethnographic data of this book and its analysis is matched only by its literary style This magnum opus of 732 pages an outcome of fieldwork covering twenty one years complete with diagrams and photographs reads like an epic novel difficult to put down Professor Jonathan Parry looks at a context in which the manual workforce is divided into distinct social classes which have a clear sense of themselves as separate and interests that are sometimes opposed The relationship between them may even be one of exploitation and they are associated with different lifestyles and outlooks kinship and marriage practices and suicide patterns A central concern is with the intersection between class caste gender and regional ethnicity with how class trumps caste in most contexts and with how classes have become increasingly structured as the structuration of castes has declined The wider theoretical ambition is to specify the general conditions under which the so called working class has any realistic prospect of unity Class History and Class Practices in the Periphery of Capitalism Paul Zarembka,2019-09-03 This volume advances our understanding of class histories and practices in societies outside the core capitalist countries and it deepens our knowledge of resistances in this periphery through site specific class analyses It also features an out of the archive translation of Karl Kautsky's theory of crises Essays in Honor of Cheng Hsiao Dek Terrell,Tong Li,M. D'Costa,Achin Chakraborty,2017-04-06 This volume takes a fresh look at the land question in India Instead of re engaging in the rich transition debate in which the transformation of agriculture is seen as a necessary historical step to usher in dynamic capitalist or socialist development this collection critically examines the centrality of land in contemporary development discourse in India Consequently the focus is on the role of the state in pushing a process of dispossession of peasants through direct expropriation for developmental purposes such as acquisition of land by local states for infrastructure development and to support accumulation strategies of private business through industrialization Land in India is sought for non agricultural purposes such as purchasing land to reduce risk and real estate development Land is also central to tribal communities adivasis whose livelihoods depend on it and on a moral economy that is independent of any price driven markets Adivasis tend to hold on to such property not as individual owners for profit but for collective security and to protect a way of life Thus land notwithstanding its role in the accumulation process has been and continues to be a turbulent arena in which classes castes and communities are in conflict with each other with the state and with capital jockeying to determine the terms and conditions of land transactions or their prevention through both market and non market mechanisms The volume goes beyond the traditional political economy of the agrarian transition question and deals with inter alia distributional conflicts arising from acquisition of land by the state for capital accumulation on the one hand and its commodification on the other It provides new analytical insights into the land acquisition processes their legal institutional and ethical implications and the multifaceted regional diversity of acquisition experiences in India The Economics of Health Reconsidered, Fourth Edition Thomas Rice, PhD,Lynn Unruh, PhD, RN,2015-06-01 Instructor

Value Making in International Economic Law and Regulation Donatella Alessandrini, 2016-01-29 This book examines the contemporary production of economic value in today's financial economies Much of the regulatory response to the global financial crisis has been based on the assumption that curbing the speculative excesses of the financial sphere is a necessary and sufficient condition for restoring a healthy economic system endowed with real values as distinct from those produced by financial markets How though can the intrinsic value of goods and services produced in the sphere of the so called real economy be disentangled from the artificial value engineered within the financial sphere Examining current projects of international legal regulation this book questions the regulation of the financial sphere insofar as its excesses are juxtaposed to some notion of economic normality Given the problem of neatly distinguishing these domains and so more generally between economy and society and production and social reproduction it considers the limits of our current conceptualization of value production and measurement with specific reference to arrangements in the areas of finance trade and labour Drawing on a range of innovative work in the social sciences and attentive to the spatial and temporal connections that make the global economy as well as the racial gender and class articulations of the social reproductive field within it it further asks what alternative arrangements might be able to affect and indeed alter the value making processes that underlie our current international regulatory framework

Thinking Outside the Box Eva Poluha, 2016-01-28 This book sets out with the question why Ethiopia a country with one of the oldest still existing state formations in the world and a farming population that has domesticated a number of indigenous food products including coffee oilseeds and Eragrostis teff remains one of the poorest in the world To answer this question the authors review the history of Ethiopia from the earliest centuries A D until the 21st century dispelling a number of prevalent myths in the process The book covers topics such as ethnicity a hot issue in todays Ethiopian politics international relations with especially Britain and Italy and the countrys lack of technical and economic progress A survey of the current situation in Ethiopia sets the scene for comparisons with other countries An examination of the history of the West illustrates how the autonomy of intellectual inquiry could promote a spiral of knowledge pave the way for the Industrial Revolution and allow western countries to attain the highest standard of living in the world A review of some East Asian countries Japan South Korea and Taiwan exemplifies how they could catch up with the West Against the backdrop of these studies the authors find the basic causes for Ethiopias poverty to be missed or messed up opportunities to adopt available scientific knowledge and technology Premising that a decent living standard a catch up should be the only reasonable goal also for Ethiopian citizens the authors propose that the country must emphasize promotion of a knowledge and information rather than focusing numbers of school children and schools and of b entrepreneurship in all economic sectors To boost these requirements successfully the authors argue that all involved in the present development agenda need to think outside the box and reassess at least two common assumptions about Ethiopias future namely that only heavy handed state guidance can bring about rapid development and that peasants and pastoralists are ignorant and must be told what to do
