Carl Sagan was perhaps one of the most influential scientific minds that the world has ever experienced. When he learned that stars were actually extremely distant suns, his world was changed and the magnitude of the universe opened up to him. Another strong motivator into science came with his reading of a popular science fiction book of the time, The Burroughs Tales. The stories were not extremely sound scientifically, but still presented ideals of adventure and the unknown. The idea that life could exist elsewhere in the universe fascinated Sagan and remained with him for the rest of his life (Escher).

Perhaps one of Sagan's most famous individual accomplishments was his involvement with the Pioneer 10 Space Probe. The probe was created to be the first object to exit our galaxy. Sagan acknowledged that the chances of anything actually discovering the probe were astronomical, but believed that it was important to promote public appreciation for science and thought the project to be "all in good fun" (McDonough 50).

less definable norms for doing this but many authors are unaware as to what they are or their use Publishing is rapidly changing and needs to be explained with a fresh perspective Simply writing good clear concise science is no longer enough there is a different mind set now required that students need to adopt if they are to succeed The purpose of this book is to provide the foundations of this new approach for both young scientists at the start of their careers as well as for more experienced scientists to teach the younger generation Most importantly the book will make the reader think in a fresh creative and novel way about writing and publishing science This is an introductory guide suitable for advanced undergraduates graduate students and professional researchers in both the life and physical sciences
