- Foundations of Industrialization
  - Eventually, cheap textile production depended on the steam engine – invented by Scottish engineer James Watt in 1765.
  - In 1815, George Stephenson successfully tested the first steam locomotive.
  - Eventually (by the mid 1850s) the steam engine was used to power ocean liners.
    - Therefore, the steam engine, originally used in textile mills, transformed the transportation industry as well, making it much cheaper for both people and goods to travel from place to place.

seem far removed from our daily lives Yet as we will see in the pages that follow the study of history is essential for understanding the world around us and our place in it This book is an attempt to demonstrate the significance of history in interpreting our present world and to explore the many ways in which the past continues to shape our society today

Labour-Intensive Industrialization in Global History Gareth Austin, Kaoru Sugihara, 2013-09-13 The prevailing view of industrialization has focussed on technology capital entrepreneurship and the institutions that enabled them to be deployed Labour was often equated with other factors of production and assigned a relatively passive role Yet it was labour absorption and the improvement of the quality of labour over the course of several centuries that underscored the timing pace and quality of global industrialization While science and technology developed in the West and whereas the use of fossil fuels especially coal and oil were vital to this process the more recent history has been underpinned by the development of comparatively resource and energy saving technology without which the diffusion of industrialization would not have been possible The labour intensive resource saving path which emerged in East Asia under the influence of Western technology and institutions and is diffusing across the world suggests the most realistic route humans could take for a further diffusion of industrialization which might respond to the rising expectations of living standards without catastrophic environmental degradation
